Post-War Program

QMC Plans for National Security

BY MAJ. GEN. T. B. LARKIN

The Quartermaster General of the Army

THE efforts of the Quartermaster Corps in the interest of national security are being directed toward supplying the United States Army with the most effective food, clothing, field shelter, equipment, and services so that the American soldier may be maintained at the highest possible degree of efficiency.

Maj. Gen. Larkin

To realize this goal, the Quartermaster Corps is proceeding toward the accomplishment of its essential objectives:

1. Methods of procurement, storage, and distribution of supplies are being constantly improved and plans made for immediate expansion in case of an emergency.
2. A vast program of research in fundamental and applied sciences, looking to the development of new items and improvement of existing equipment is under way.
3. The training of personnel is being revised and intensified to meet the requirements of the new technological age.
4. The participation of industrial and commercial institutions is being secured in the development of a strong Reserve Corps.
5. An extensive and detailed plan for the Quartermaster Corps' phase of industrial mobilization is being formulated.

Since the equipment and services provided by the Quartermaster Corps concern the life, health, and well-being of the soldier, the discoveries and improvements that are made as a result of research and testing will benefit the entire population. They will contribute not only to the military strength of the Nation, but to the realization of a fuller life for all of its citizens.

Besides supplying the Army and building for national security, the Quartermaster Corps is engaged in another mission—that being rendered for the men and women who gave their lives for their country in World War II. The remains of those who fell on the battlefields of the world are sought out and identified if it is possible to do so. They are buried in American cemeteries abroad. Beginning this fall, the remains of those whose next of kin wish them returned, will be brought home for permanent interment. The last resting places of those buried in National Cemeteries, either in the United States or its possessions, are maintained in perpetuity by the Quartermaster Corps.

In considering our future security it is

Marine Corps Selection

The first Marine Corps selection board to meet under the provisions of the Officer Personnel Act of 1947 will convene at Marine Corps Headquarters on or about 17 Nov., to recommend lieutenant colonels and majors for promotion to the next higher grades.

Members of the Board are: Maj. Gen. Franklin A. Hart, USMC; Brig. Gen. John T. Walker, USMC; Brig. Gen. William E. Riley, USMC; Brig. Gen. Henry D. Linscott, USMC; Brig. Gen. Dudley S. Brown, USMC; Brig. Gen. Robert S. Pepper, USMC; Brig. Gen. Ivan W. Miller, USMC; Brig. Gen. William O. Brice, USMC.

Alternate members are: Brig. Gen. Leonard E. Rea, USMC; Brig. Gen. Merritt B. Curtis, USMC; Brig. Gen. Fred S. Robillard, USMC.

The promotion zones are determined as of the date the board convenes, but present indications are that the first officer in the promotion zone and the last officer eligible for consideration in each grade will be Lt. Col. August Larson, Lt. Col. Robert S. Vall, Maj. Edwin S. Kimball and Maj. Walter A. Baran.

A second board will meet about 2 Dec. for the purpose of recommending captains and first lieutenants for promotion to the next higher grades.

As in the case of the first board, promotion zones will be determined at the time the board convenes. Present indications are that the first officer in the promotion zone and the last eligible for consideration in each grade will be Capt. Robert S. Brown, Capt. M. J. Hogan, 1st Lt. James A. Dorsey and 1st Lt. James B. Soper.

Air Force Selection

The United States Air Force board which convened in Washington two weeks ago to select officers for the rank of colonel has made great progress with its work and will probably complete it some time next week.

The two boards meeting previously, to select major generals and brigadier generals for the Air Force, have completed their duties. The three boards considered a total of approximately 1,400 officers.

Under a policy adopted by the Air Force names of the members of the Boards who select officers for promotion are being kept confidential. This is in sharp contrast to the Army, Navy, and Marine Corps which announce the membership of their boards in advance of convening.

Navy Staff Boards

Recommendations for promotion of eligible Navy officers of the Supply, Medical, Dental and Chaplain Corps to the temporary rank of rear admiral are to be made by four staff selection boards, according to ALNAV 239.

The text of ALNAV 239 follows:

"Four Staff Selection Boards to recommend eligible officers of the Supply Corps, Medical Corps, Dental Corps and Chaplain Corps for temporary promotion to rear admiral will be convened 1 December 1947. Eligible officers will include all captains of the above corps whose line running mates are eligible as outlined in ALNAV 211-47. Notification of

Gen. Clark Heads Army Board to Pick Colonels

Membership of the selection boards which will consider officers for promotion to colonels in the Regular Army was announced today, 8 Nov., by the Department of the Army.

The board to select officers of the Arms, Administrative Services and Technical Services is headed by General Mark W. Clark. Other members of this board are:

Lt. Gen. Alvan C. Gillem, Maj. Gen. Ernest N. Harmon, Maj. Gen. Glen E. Edgerton, Maj. Gen. Edwin P. Parker, Jr., Maj. Gen. Everett S. Hughes and Maj. Gen. Spencer B. Akin. In addition to these regular members Maj. Gen. Luther D. Miller, Col. Roy H. Parker and Col. Gynther Storaasli are alternate members who will replace Generals Parker, Hughes and Akin when the board considers members of the Chaplain Corps.

The five-member Medical Corps board is headed by Maj. Gen. Malcolm C. Grow. Other members are Brig. Gen. John M. Willis, Brig. Gen. Omar H. Quade, Brig. Gen. Albert W. Kenner and Brig. Gen. Guy B. Denit.

The boards are scheduled to meet at the Pentagon early in December. They will consider for promotion to colonel all lieutenant colonels of the arms, administrative, and technical services less chaplains and medical department personnel who will complete 24 years' service prior to December 31, 1947 and in addition, officers, regardless of permanent rank, who served as temporary general officers prior to VJ Day. Chaplains and Medical Corps officers who were permanent lieutenant colonels on 31 Aug. 1947 will be considered.

The membership of the Board represents a cross section of the Army. On it are officers who entered the service through the Academy, those who rose from enlisted ranks, those who came from civil life and from the Reserves. Also represented are those experienced in all types of command, from Armies, to corps, and divisions, and those who served in Washington. The Board also represents the various theaters of operations during the war.

The board now meeting to select officers for permanent promotion to the rank of major general and brigadier general will also consider officers for temporary promotion to those ranks.

The board currently selecting general officers will not consider officers for branch chiefs and assistant branch chiefs, Maj. Gen. Willard S. Paul, Director of Personnel and Administration, Department of the Army General Staff, said this week.

No instructions have yet been issued by the Chief of Staff concerning the selection of generals and lieutenant generals, General Paul said, adding that neither have any directives been issued concerning forced attrition.

General Paul also stated that no determination has yet been made as to what posts will carry the rank of general.

Following are brief biographical sketches of the members named for the

Praises Pacific Medical Service

Maj. Gen. Raymond W. Bliss, Surgeon General of the Army, recently returned from a five-week inspection of medical facilities in the Pacific theater, reports the Army Medical Department can well be proud of the overall excellence of the medical service in the Pacific. This fact is born out by the generally low disease and death rates in this area.

General Bliss stated his observations pointed toward the need for teams of medical, surgical and neuropsychiatry consultants in the Pacific and the need for a reduced length of duty assignments in isolated areas.

General Bliss accompanied the subcommittee of the House Committee on Armed Services headed by Representative W. Sterling Cole (R-N.Y.) and wherever possible urged the members of the Congressional party to visit the medical installations with him so that they might see at first hand just what was needed to give adequate medical care to our Armed Services. Among the installations visited were those in Honolulu, Kwajalein, Guam, Iwo Jima, Tokyo, Korea, China, Okinawa and the Philippines.

Of outstanding interest to the group was the new 1500 bed Tripler General Hospital which is nearing completion in Honolulu. When completed General Bliss stated "It will be the finest hospital in the world to date." The approximate date of completion is the last of December and it is expected to be opened the following April or May. The Army has two good hospitals operating in Hawaii at present—one at Schofield Barracks and the Old Tripler General Hospital.

General Bliss praised the conscientious and careful work being performed by the young medical officers who received their professional education under the Army Specialized Training Program and the spirit manifested by doctors and nurses alike throughout the area.

Atom Struck Guns Inspected

The U. S. Naval Gun Factory, under close supervision of naval ordnance officers and engineers of the Bureau of Ordnance, began an inspection and evaluation this week of atomic bomb damage to destroyer guns. Items of armament under observation are from the target ships used in the atomic bomb tests during Operation Crossroads at Bikini.

The inspection is being conducted to determine the extent of damage to the weapons for the purpose of redesigning the guns and improving the materials and techniques involved. All necessary measures have been taken to guard personnel involved from the remote possibility of harmful radiological exposure.

Dependency Allowance Decision

An officer who contributed more than half of a dependent mother's expenditures was held to be entitled to increased rental and subsistence allowances, according to a decision handed down this week by the Court of Claims.

1st Lt. Victor M. Garcia, USA, brought suit to recover rental and subsistence allowances on account of a dependent mother for the period from 4 Jan. 1941 to 22 Feb. 1942, the date of his marriage. Chief Justice Jones, delivering the opinion, stated:

"We think the plaintiff was the mother's chief support . . . His contribution amounted to more than half of her expenditures and without it she would have been in financial distress. Plaintiff is entitled to recover the increased rental and subsistence allowances provided by law for an officer of his rank and length of service . . . in the sum of $1,067."

Secretary of State Marshall and General of the Army Dwight D. Eisenhower, Army Chief of Staff, join in paying tribute to retiring James McIntosh, messenger and general factotum to Chiefs of Staff since 1917. He was presented an official Army Certificate of Appreciation signed by General Eisenhower and Secretary of the Army Royall.

Coordination in Medicine

Secretary of the Army Royall this week stressed the need for co-ordination of the medical services of the nation's Armed Forces and expressed the Army's determination, under unification, to work for that co-ordination. Mr. Royall spoke informally at the meeting of the Society of United States Medical Consultants of World War II, at Walter Reed General Hospital.

He stated his belief that, by co-ordination, there can be effected savings in medical facilities and even more savings in medical personnel, particularly specialists whose numbers are limited.

Mr. Royall lauded the Secretary's Medical Advisory Committee, now headed by Dr. Edward Churchill of Boston, and the work of the medical consultants during the war and since. He declared that the Army owed a great debt to all the consultants, and especially to the late Dr. Elliott Cutler, also of Boston, first president of the Consultants Society.

Among the problems facing the Army medical service in the future, Mr. Royall stressed the prospective lack of medical personnel. He said that the Army knows the military doctor wants residence training, with a chance for research and specialization, and added that such training and opportunity were goals of the Army Medical Department.

Navy Antarctic Project

Following a rendezvous at Samoa in early December, two United States Naval icebreakers, the USS Edisto and the USS Burton Island, will proceed to the Antarctic on the "Second (1948) Antarctic Development Project." The vessels will each carry two aircraft, for exploration, liaison and general utility.

Comdr. G. L. Ketchum will command the expedition to continue the naval program of training men and testing equipment under conditions of extreme cold weather. There will also be a limited amount of scientific exploration before the ships return to their home ports in the United States at the end of the Antarctic summer.

To Recruiting Station

Maj. Bernard J. Courneen, formerly Chief of the Special Services Branch, Personnel Division of Headquarters Air Transport Command, Washington, D. C., has been transferred to the U. S. Army and Air Force Recruiting Station, Rochester, New York as detachment commander.

Services Commended

Secretary of Defense Forrestal has transmitted to the Secretaries of the Army, Navy and Air Force a letter commending the three services on the aid rendered by them in combatting the recent fires in the New England States.

"The effort made by personnel of the three armed services in meeting and conquering the disastrous fire situation in New England reflects great credit on all who were involved," the Secretary said. "The cooperation, discipline and effectiveness of these groups throughout the fire area is a matter of pride to the country and to the services concerned."

Navy Adds Transport Helicopter

A transport helicopter, the first to be used by the Navy, was officially accepted last week when Lt. Cmdr. P. B. Bass, Bureau of Aeronautics, received the HRP1 Rescuer from the manufacturer.

The new helicopter was turned over to Capt. Clayton C. Marcy, commanding officer of Helicopter Development Squadron at Lakehurst, N. J. A pioneer in the development of rotary wing aircraft for the Navy, Captain Marcy organized and headed the first Navy helicopter unit which recovered film from the radio active waters of Bikini Lagoon.

Retired Officers Association

The Retired Officers Association, with Headquarters at 1600 20th Street, N. W., Washington 9, D. C., announced this week that 413 new members joined during October. They included retired commissioned officers, warrant officers, and nurses of the Army, Navy, Air Force, Marine Corps, Coast Guard, Coast and Geodetic Survey and Public Health Service, and corresponding retired officer personnel of the reserve components.

Atomic Forces Research

Under Navy contract, scientists conducting cosmic ray research have discovered information about the particle known as mesotron. A mesotron is one of the particles released when a cosmic ray splits an atom.

Out of thousands of photographs taken in the past few months from a B-29 flying high above the Sierras, research workers have discovered one picture which shows a mesotron bursting into other particles having energies totally different from what had been calculated by nuclear physicists. To date no one has ever observed a mesotron except in the atom-splitting caused by cosmic rays. One of the main purposes of the million-dollar cyclotrons being built in laboratories all over the United States is to produce mesotrons artificially. It is known that one mesotron releases 100-million electron volts of energy when it blows up. If man could produce these and harness enough of them to explode simultaneously he could create enormous quantities of energy.

The new discovery upsets the theory that when a mesotron disintegrates it releases two particles, an electron and a neutrino, each carrying 50-million electron volts of energy. By discovering a particle in a mesotron explosion which carries only 24-million electron volts, it has shown that either there is more than one kind of mesotron or that mesotrons break up into several different kinds of particles.

Scientists in the Office of Naval Research indicate that it is the acquisition of fundamental scientific knowledge of this kind now that will prepare the nation for the eventualities of tomorrow.

TC Test Unit Inspected

Final inspection of the Transportation Corps Arctic Test Detachment, including its special equipment and supplies, was made 4 Nov. at the Transportation Corps Railroad Repair Shop, Camp Holabird, Md., by Maj. Gen. Henry S. Aurand, Director, Research and Development, General Staff, Department of the Army, Maj. Gen. Ewart G. Plank, President of the Transportation Corps Board, and other high ranking officers.

The equipment to be tested was developed by the Transportation Corps Board under the staff direction of the Research and Engineering Division, Office of the Chief of Transportation. Extensive tests of equipment in the Arctic will be made over a period of approximately four months under varying conditions over a wide area.

Improper Marine Uniforms

Commanding officers of the Marine Corps have recently been directed to take steps to insure strict compliance with current dress regulations for enlisted personnel. The directive, which resulted from recent inspector general reports, stated that there is an "increasing prevalence of improperly fitted and altered enlisted men's uniforms." The most common faults are tight fitting coats and jackets, short trousers and unnecessary major alterations to coats and jackets.

The directive stated further, "Indications are that sufficient care is not being exercised in trying on garments to determine proper size." Commanding officers are to obtain a higher standard of appearance of enlisted personnel, and at the same time obviate the necessity of too high a percentage of uniform alterations.

You'll get special attention from Army and Navy Journal advertisers—they cater to service personnel.

Unified Command in Caribbean

The Office of the Secretary of Defense 1 Nov. announced the establishment by the Joint Chiefs of Staff of a unified command in the Caribbean similar to those already established in Europe and in the Pacific.

The announcement pointed out that this step is in accordance with a responsibility of the Joint Chiefs of Staff under the National Security Act of 1947, which states that "subject to the authority and direction of the President and the Secretary of Defense, it shall be the duty of the Joint Chiefs of Staff  to establish unified commands in strategic areas when such unified commands are in the interest of national security."

Lt. Gen. Willis D. Crittenger, USA, has been designated as the Commander in Chief, Caribbean (CinCCarib), and has been assigned the U. S. forces in the islands of the Caribbean and in the present Panama Canal Department; except for fleet facilities and fleet bases at Roosevelt Roads, Trinidad, Guantanamo, and the fleet air wings and fleet vessels temporarily based in the Antilles which will remain under the operational control of the Commander in Chief, Atlantic Fleet, Admiral William H. P. Blandy, U.S.N.

Admiral Blandy continues to command the United States Atlantic Fleet with control over all U. S. naval forces in the Atlantic except those fleet air wings and other fleet units assigned to bases under Lieutenant General Crittenger and except those assigned to Admiral Richard L. Connolly, U.S.N. who has been given a new designation as Commander in Chief, U.S. Naval Forces Eastern Atlantic and Mediterranean (CinCNavEastLantMed).

Admiral Connolly's command normally consists of a division of cruisers, a squadron of destroyers and one aircraft carrier, plus the necessary non-combatant auxiliary vessels, all of which are assigned from the Atlantic Fleet on a rotational basis.

Both Admiral Blandy's command and Admiral Connolly's command have been placed under the direction of the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

Joint Chaplains' Conference

Carlisle Barracks, Pa.—A group of 37 of the highest ranking administrative chaplains in the Army, Navy, and Air Forces arrived at the Chaplain School here 5 Nov. for a three day conference to discuss the status, techniques and methods of operation in the Chaplain Corps in the three branches of the service and study plans for cooperation in the future.

Every phase of activity in the Chaplain Corps in the Regular Army, Reserve, and National Guard were studied including procurement, supplies, training, personnel, administration and extension courses.

The conference sessions opened Wednesday morning at 8:15 AM with addresses of welcome by Col. William B. Tuttle, Post Commander, and Chaplain (Col.) Gynther Storaasli, Commandant of the Chaplain School. Speakers for the conference included visiting chaplains, chaplains from the School, two New York ministers, an officer from the Surgeon General's Office and a radio program director.

Chaplain (Maj. Gen.) Luther Deck Miller, USA, Chief of Chaplains, U. S. Army; Chaplain (Rear Adm.) William N. Thomas, Chief of Chaplains, U. S. Navy; and Chaplain (Maj.) E. I. Carraker, USA, Headquarters, U. S. Air Forces, led the opening discussions the first day of the conference on, "The Future of the Chaplaincy."

AGF Pilots to NG Training

In order to assist the National Guard in its newly established training program for ex-Air Force Pilots, ground crews and other ground light aviation personnel, 60 Army Ground Forces liaison pilots have been assigned as advisers to the Senior Ground Instructors who supervise the program.

The AGF pilots are undergoing a three weeks' orientation course at Fort Sill, Oklahoma, prior to assuming their posts with National Guard units throughout the country. One such course is now in progress and another is scheduled to begin 30 Nov.

Evening Dress Uniform

The Joint study looking toward the approval of a standardized evening dress uniform for officers of all the Armed Services has gone forward in accordance with the directive of Secretary of Defense Forrestal, and it is expected that recommendations will be submitted to the Secretary within a few weeks.

While no final decision has been reached by the Board and details have not been worked out, it is understood that the design to be ultimately approved will basically be: a formal evening dress with tails, tailored from a blue-black material, with colored braid on the coat cuffs and on the trousers to indicate the wearer's branch of the Service.

Despite the generally expressed fear that the adoption of a new evening dress uniform would be followed by official orders, or unofficial "ground rules," requiring all officers to own it, it is understood that the President is determined that there will be no compulsion applied to force officers to purchase the new uniform. It is the President's idea that only those stationed at the White House as aides and the officers assigned as attaches or assistant attaches at embassies and legations abroad be required to own the uniform.

The following policy regarding wear of the dress uniform was published this week by the Department of the Army in Circular 31.

IV—DRESS UNIFORM.—1. Officers currently possessing dress uniforms prescribed in AR 600-38, 17 August 1938 (blue dress, special evening dress, blue mess, white dress, and white mess) may wear same when attending state functions, both at home or abroad, when officers of other nations may be present in evening dress uniforms, and on other occasions when common usage and good judgment dictate.

2. Officers are cautioned that the above authorization places no obligation on the part of any individual to incur additional expense at this time, as the matter of design of dress uniforms for the three services is currently under study.

3. The following parts of publications are rescinded:
a. Section VII, Circular 274, War Department, 1946.

b. Paragraphs 1b (required wear), 6 (full dress), 7 (full dress, mounted), 9 (blue dress, mounted), 17 (belt, full dress), 21 (chain, sash), 32 (knot, sash, dress), and 35 (sash), AR 600-38, 17 August 1938.

c. Figures 1 and 2 (full dress) and 14 (sash), AR 600-38.

d. So much of AR 600-38 as authorizes or prescribes the wearing of sashes.

4. Paragraph 14 (uniform for wear at the White House), AR 600-38, is suspended pending completion of studies referred to in paragraph 2 and revision of AR 600-38.

5. Stocks of AR 600-38, 17 August 1938, are exhausted and will not be reprinted.

Flying Fitness Boards

Procedure for the disposition of Naval Aviation personnel who fail to meet required flight standards has been published by the Naval Bureau of Personnel.

The directive provides for the formation of an informal board and submission of a report in each instance. The boards are to be composed of three Naval Aviators and one Flight Surgeon. Where practicable, all members of the board are to be senior to the aviation personnel involved.

Service Pay Study

The Secretaries of the Army and Navy have completed their study of the Joint Pay Board's report and made their recommendations concerning it. It is understood that the Secretary of the Air Force will do so very shortly.

This prompt action makes it very likely that the final draft will be ready for Secretary of Defense Forrestal's consideration and approval in ample time for the report to go to this session of Congress. As matters now stand there are no ready plans for getting the matter before Congress unless some member should ask the Departments for the report. The study was originated within the Departments and no legislation has been approved by the Bureau of the Budget for direct submission as an administration proposal.

However, in view of the interest of many members of the Committee in various angles of service pay, it is quite likely that a request will be made to send the data to Congress.

WILLIAM HENRY DRAPER, JR.,
Under Secretary of the Army

GORDON GRAY
Assistant Secretary
of the Army

WHEN the new National Military Establishment was created by the National Defense Act of 1947, one result was a re-alignment of responsibilities among the subordinate members of the secretariat in the three coordinate military departments.

The table of organization for each provides one under secretary and two assistant secretaries, but the duties are hardly the same as those associated with the titles by most service personnel. In the Department of the Army the post of Under Secretary is now filled by William Henry Draper, Jr., who has nothing much to do with procurement, and one of the remaining spots has recently been filled by Gordon Gray. The second position of Assistant Secretary is as yet unfilled.

The first Under Secretary of the Army is an amateur magician of considerable skill and high standing—even among professional prestidigitators—but he is under no illusion that much can be done with mirrors in his new job. He has a slightly sinister appearance, as becomes a magician, with heavy black hair, bushy eyebrows, gray eyes.

Military procurement is now handled by an assistant in the office of Secretary Royall, and Under Secretary Draper is concerned primarily with the political and economic problems of the occupation zones in enemy territory. He is magnificently equipped to handle them. An investment banker—he had been vice president of Dillon, Read & Company for several years when he entered the Army in 1940—he completed a varied wartime military career as Chief of the Economic Division, Control Council for Germany. In other words, he was General Lucius D. Clay's principal economic adviser.

Now 53, he has the energy that his onerous duties demand. He is in his office at the Pentagon by 7:45 o'clock each morning, seldom leaves before 7 in the evening, and frequently is at his desk as late as 10 or 10:30 at night. His days are a succession of urgent conferences—with Army officers, with higher officials of the Military Establishment, with diplomatic missions, with State Department officials. The grinding schedule does not impair his rapid-fire thinking, or his pleasant and even cordial manner.

A native of New York City and a graduate of New York University, Mr. Draper was a Major of Infantry during the first World War, and kept his reserve commission active between wars, serving as Chief of Staff of the 77th Division (Organized Reserves) from 1936 to 1940. In the latter year he came to Washington as a member of the President's Advisory Commission on Selective Service, then reported for active duty on the War Department General Staff. He was Assistant Chief of the Morale Branch and a member of the Joint Army and Navy Council on Welfare and Recreation in 1941, then went to the Pacific in command of the 136th Infantry Regiment. Back in Washington in 1944, he took charge of contract termination, and then went to Germany—with the grade of brigadier general.

Mr. Gray, the Assistant Secretary of the Army, is a much younger man. He is ruddy-faced and sandy-haired, with an engaging slow smile that crinkles the corners of his eyes. Now 38, he entered the Army as a private in 1942—resigning a seat in the North Carolina State Senate to volunteer—and was commissioned via the Infantry OCS at Fort Benning, ending his war service a Captain in 1945. A graduate of the University of North Carolina and the Yale Law School, he practiced in New York for two years before moving to North Carolina in 1935. There he became president of the Piedmont Publishing Company and publisher of the Winston-Salem Journal and Twin-City Sentinel.

Little more than a month in his office, he is well into the occupied areas work with Mr. Draper, and has obviously taken quick hold of his job for all his comment that "I'm still on a merry-go-round."

"I'm trying to learn this occupation area problem," he says, "and I've also been considering the problems involved in the whole public information field. Otherwise, I chase a lot of rabbits—isolated matters, detailed by the Secretary—and the future seems to hold a great deal of attention to interior departmental studies on the civilian components, such as the Organized Reserves and the National Guard, in the unification program."

The field of public information he views as an extremely important one, as would logically be expected from a publisher who believes in the military establishment.

"It's not only necessary to have a good Army, but necessary to have it well understood," says Mr. Gray. "It's necessary, also, to have the soldier himself understand that his is an honorable calling, and essential to the security of the country."

It is doubtful that the proposal for universal military training has any more ardent supporter than the new Assistant Secretary.

"I believe personally in UMT," he says. "I went in as a private myself. I also have four sons, and I hope they go in as privates under UMT. I don't consider it a matter of sharing the same hardships, but as sharing the same opportunities—there is nothing more democratic than UMT."

Gen. Bradley Cited

Three citations accompanying the award of the Theodore Roosevelt Distinguished Service Medal to General Omar N. Bradley last week was as follows:

"General Bradley, who receives the Medal for 'the administration of public office' as well as in the field of the National Defense, is chief of the Veterans Administration. A graduate of West Point, he was not only outstanding as a cadet but was recalled to the Academy as Commandant of Cadets. In the Tunisian and Sicilian campaigns he revealed gifts for organization, strategy and tactics which came to full flower in the invasion of Normandy and the encirclement of the Ruhr. His understanding of the man in the ranks, his sympathy for him and his determination to conserve lives at any cost short of the achievement of the objective assigned him, made him for the best beloved even as he was one of the most successful of all American commanders.

"As head of the Veterans Administration he has confronted difficulties more complex, it has been said, than the invasion of Europe. He has increased to an extraordinary degree the efficiency of the organization which deals successfully with upward of fifteen million veterans when, before him, it dealt ineffectively with five. He has cut red tape, expelled the 'chiselers,' raised the standards of medical care and hospital management, and defied the demagogues seeking to exploit the veteran for their own ends. The future of the x-GI, he has said, 'lies in honest opportunity rather than special privilege. We dare not benefit one group of the American people at the expense of another.'"

Correlate Service Budgets

Carrying out the specific mandates of the National Security Act, Secretary of Defense Forrestal this week issued instructions that "no reports or recommendations on proposed or pending legislation shall be submitted to the Budget Bureau or to Congress except after thorough interdepartmental co-ordination."

Mr. Forrestal also formally designated Mr. W. J. McNeil, one of his assistants, as the one to correlate budget requests. As a matter of fact, Mr. McNeil was announced as having been picked for this purpose even before Mr. Forrestal took the oath of office.

Your enjoyment climbs to new altitudes through radio and television achievements of RCA Laboratories.

RCA LABORATORIES—your "magic carpet"

to new wonders of radio and television

More and more people will go sightseeing by television as the number of stations and home receivers increases. Eventually, television networks will serve homes from coast to coast . . . bringing you the news as it happens . . . sports events . . . drama . . . vaudeville.

Many of the scientific advances which have made possible these extended services of radio-electronics, in sound and sight, originated in research conducted by RCA Laboratories.

Recent RCA "firsts" include: ultrasensitive television cameras that give startling clarity to all-electronic television . . . tiny tubes for compact, lightweight portable radios . . . "picture tube" screens for brilliant television reception.

In other fields of radio-electronics, RCA has pioneered major achievements—including development of the electron microscope. Research by RCA Laboratories goes into every product bearing the name RCA or RCA Victor.

RCA Laboratories at Princeton, N. J., one of the world's centers of radio and electronic research. ● When in New York City, be sure to see the radio-electronic wonders on display at RCA Exhibition Hall, 36 West 49th Street. Free admission. Radio Corporation of America, Radio City, New York 20.

RADIO CORPORATION of AMERICA

USNA Class Policy

A discussion of a Class Policy adopted by the 1948-B class and approved by the Superintendent last April was given over the Mutual Broadcasting System on 4 Nov. by Midshipman Malcolm E. Phares, a member of the class of 1949.

The policy, which supplements the Naval Academy Reg. book and has all the force and effect of official regulations defines the "rates" of each class. In his radio interview Midshipman Phares discussed the policy with Helen Hall, of station WCBM, as follows:

Phares—"Probably the most unique thing about 48-B's policy is the fact that it specifies that private man-to-man correction will supplant all practices of hazing of plebeas."

Hall—"If you don't have hazing at the Naval Academy, how do you maintain discipline within the Brigade?"

Phares—"Discipline is firmly established in the Brigade because we are a part of the Navy, and from the day we enter, we must recognize the necessity for respect for authority, and immediate unhesitant obedience. Plebe year is designed to stress this. Also, the Reg. book states that all classes shall show deference to senior classes. Then there is a psychological appeal to the intelligence of all midshipmen that respect for authority is necessary in any military organization. Finally, there is the first class policy."

Hall—"Then physical hazing, as such, does not exist at the Naval Academy today."

Phares—"Physical hazing no longer has a place here. The idea is that a man's self-dignity must be preserved, even when he is being corrected."

Hall—"By the way, I read the article in the Atlantic Monthly by ex-midshipman Ralph Lee Smith. He was in the class of 1949, I believe. Did you know him?"

Phares—"Yes, I certainly did. He lived right around the corner from me during plebe year."

Hall—"Your experiences at the Academy don't seem to tie with his."

Phares—"In deed they do not. Our discussion during this broadcast represents the true state of affairs at the Naval Academy today. You see, there are always a few who are adapted to or who do not like military life and who make the mistake of entering upon it."

running mate assignments have been individually forwarded all Staff Corps Officers. Individual officers whose running mate notification has not reached them may in general consider that they are eligible for promotion if they have three years service in grade 30 June 1948 computed from date of rank. Officers serving in restrictive appointments in the grades of rear admiral and commodore also eligible provided service qualifications are met. Special fitness reports not required but each eligible officer and reporting senior should assure that last regular fitness report has been submitted. Section 308 (c) of Officer Personnel Act of 1947 prescribes that any officer eligible for consideration by a selection board shall have the right to forward through official channels at any time not later than ten days after convening of said board a written communication inviting attention to any matter of record in the Navy department

U. S. NAVY & MARINE CORPS

172nd Anniversary of U. S. Marine Corps

AS the United States Marine Corps prepares to observe its 172d anniversary 10 Nov. 1947, General Alexander A. Vandegrift, Commandant of the Marine Corps, has issued the following message:

"On this 172nd Anniversary of the Marine Corps we draw renewed faith and devotion for our future tasks from the example of the past. We recall that the Continental Congress created our Corps from the embattled citizenry to fill a special need and that in the intervening years it has become known as a highly specialized, thoroughly professional service. Although the United States has engaged in only seven major wars, it has called upon the Marines in almost every year of its existence. Marines have made more than 200 landings, many of them in times of relative peace. Thus, it is our tradition to be prepared in either war or peace, since we have found that peace must often be enforced.

"We recall also that from the sea-faring traditions of our Corps came the development of modern amphibious warfare, a major contribution to the victory in World War II. Again today we are actively revising and reorganizing our amphibious forces to take advantage of new weapons and new tactics. These peacetime tasks are fully as important as the more stirring deeds of war.

"To all Marines of our regular forces, and to our comrades, the citizen Marines of the Marine Corps Reserve, I extend hearty greetings on this anniversary. All of us pledge to our nation our utmost efforts in the coming year, that our honored tradition of service may continue unbroken."

concerning himself which he deems important in the consideration of his case provided that such communication shall not contain any reflection upon the character, conduct or motives of or criticism of any officer."

More Uniform Proposals

The Navy Permanent Uniform Board this week completed several proposed uniform changes for use by the General Board in determining possible replacements for the traditional bell bottoms. On display in the chambers of the General Board, the uniforms, still in the discussion stage, portray a wide variety of changes.

Included in the group are, for enlisted personnel, a khaki uniform similar to the present whites; dress blues with white jumper and blue collar, to be worn with a collar-less jacket; a blue wool utility uniform for all personnel; and an officers' green work uniform with an Eisenhower-type jacket.

After officers and enlisted men had viewed the uniforms on display and filled out questionnaires, a conference study was held by the General Board on 5 Nov. The primary purpose of the conference study is to compile statistical information on the opinions outlined in the questionnaires. This information will be submitted to the Permanent Uniform Board which will continue to work on the problem.

Navy School Opens

U. S. Navy commanding officers from fifty service schools in the East arrived at the George Washington University this week for the opening of a course in school administration. Comdr. Howard O. Johnson, USN, Bureau of Personnel, has been named as liaison officer between the Navy and the University.

A five-day series of conferences will comprise the course, followed by a twenty-week correspondence course at the conclusion of which the Naval officers will return to the University for the final series of conferences early next April. Similar courses will be conducted by the University School of Education staff at Great Lakes Naval Training Center in December and at the San Diego Naval Training Center in January.

USAF Orders More P-84 Jets

A new $15,000,000 U. S. Air Force contract for additional P-84 Thunderjets, which will increase the number of the new jet fighters it has on order to more than 550 planes, has just been announced.

The contract for additional P-84's was concluded following completion of performance tests under simulated combat conditions. The AF tests involved firing of many thousands of rounds from the P-84's six guns in salvo, and success in firing them at speeds above 600 m.p.h.

In addition, an armament crew demonstrated that a complete P-84 armament servicing operation, including reloading of ammunition boxes and removal and replacement of all six guns, could be accomplished in less than thirty minutes.

The in-flight firing tests were conducted by 1st Lt. William A. Kruege, a jet pilot and armament expert of the Air Forces Air Materiel Command at Wright Field, Lieutenant Kruege was assisted by three civilian test pilots, Carl Bellinger, Jack Bade and Pete Collins.

Capt. Nicholls Appointed CO

Fort Worth, Tex.—Capt. Andrew B. C. Nicholls, Ord. Dept., just returned from 42 months in Europe, has been designated commanding officer, 1st Ord. Sq., Eighth Air Force.

UNITED STATES AIR FORCE

Eastern Pacific Wing, ATC

Fairfield-Suisun, AAFld., Calif.—The Air Transport Command's Eastern Pacific Wing commanded by Brig. Gen. Archie J. Old, Jr., is now assisting in the training of former Air Force navigators called to duty for a two-week active duty training period by the Fourth Air Force at Hamilton Field, Calif.

The last several days of the two-week active duty tour the Reserve Officers are flown as student navigators on one of the several scheduled Trans-Pacific daily flights of the ATC's Pacific Division between here and Hickam Field, Hawaii.

Col. Usher Commands Hamilton

Col. George L. Usher, former Inspector General of the Fourth Air Force, has succeeded Col. Wentworth Goss as Commanding Officer of Hamilton Field, Calif. Colonel Goss will take over a new command at Hill Field, Utah.

A veteran combat pilot of both World Wars, Colonel Usher was Commanding Officer of the famous 135th "Statue of Liberty Squadron," the first all-American air unit to fly over the front in France in World War I. He is one of the few present-day pilots credited with destruction of enemy aircraft in the first World War.

Transfer Air Personnel

Secretary of Defense Forrestal 3 Nov. announced the issuance of a third of a series of orders concerning the transfer of service personnel from the Army to the Air Force and vice versa.

Transfer Order No. 1, the complete text of which was printed in the 4 Oct. issue of the ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL, provided for the transfer of certain Army and Air Force personnel whose assignment is not in accord with their desires. Transfer Order No. 3 provides a means of implementing such requests, as in the absence of general instructions authorizing these transfers it would be necessary to handle each case individually and to issue a separate transfer order to cover each individual affected.

The text of the order follows:

"1. There shall be transferred from the Department of the Army to the Department of the Air Force and vice versa, such commissioned officers, warrant officers and enlisted personnel (excepting personnel of the Women's Army Corps), commissioned, holding warrants or enlisted in any component of the Army of the United States and the Air Force of the United States as the Secretary of the Army and the Secretary of the Air Force shall jointly determine.

"2. The transfers herein directed shall take effect at such time or times as the Secretary of the Army and the Secretary of the Air Force shall jointly determine.

"3. The Secretary of the Army, the Secretary of the Air Force, or their representatives are hereby authorized to issue appropriate orders announcing the transfers herein directed.

"4. This order shall take effect at 12:00 noon 31 October, 1947."

Transfer Order No. 2 permitted the Secretary of the Air Force to proceed with the selection and promotion of Air Force officers and with the establishment of the promotion list for the Air Force. The text follows:

"Pursuant to the authority vested in me by the National Security Act of 1947 (Act of July 26, 1947: Public Law 253, 80th Congress) and in order to effect certain transfers authorized or directed therein, it is hereby ordered as follows:

"1. All functions, powers and duties prescribed in the Officer Personnel Act of 1947 (Act of 7 August 1947, Public Law 381, 80th Congress) for the Secretary of the Army and the Department of the Army insofar as they pertain to the officers of the Department of the Air Force are hereby transferred to the Secretary of the Air Force and the Department of the Air Force.

"2. The transfers directed herein shall be effective at 12:00 noon on 1 October 1947."

Gen. Arnold's Portrait to USAF

An oil painting of General of the Army Henry H. Arnold was presented to the U. S. Air Force by Thomas G. Lanphier, Jr., president of the Air Force Association and editor of The Boise (Idaho) Daily Statesman, at USAF Headquarters, 3 Nov.

General Carl Spaatz, USAF Chief of Staff, accepted the portrait for the USAF in the presence of General Arnold, wartime commander of the Air Force, and other high-ranking Air Force, Army, and Navy officials.

Painted by Gerald L. Brockhurst, New York portrait artist, the painting was presented by the Air Force Association in behalf of its members and other friends of General Arnold.

Among the guests at the ceremony were:

Secretary of State Marshall; Secretary of the Air Force and Mrs. Symington; Fleet Admiral William D. Leahy, Chief of Staff to President Truman; Under Secretary of the Air Force Barrows; Assistant Secretary of the Air Force Zuckert; Assistant Secretary of the Air Force Whitney; Mrs. Carl Spaatz; General Hoyt S. Vandenberg, Vice Chief of Staff of the USAF, and Mrs. Vandenberg; General George C. Kenny, Commanding General of Strategic Air Command; Lt. Gen. J. Lawton Collins, Acting Chief of Staff of the Army; and Dr. Gilbert Grosvenor, president of the National Geographic Society.

New Privileges at USNA

Rear Adm. James L. Holloway, Jr., Superintendent of the U. S. Naval Academy has announced a new program of "rates for the first class midshipmen at the Academy, commensurate with their responsibilities for the discipline and leadership of the Brigade."

They are granted town liberty from the last academic or drill period until evening meal formation on week-days (Mondays through Fridays). Town liberty for midshipmen, first class, is extended to an area within seven miles from the Academy instead of the former five miles. Drinking of alcoholic beverages within this seven mile limit is prohibited.

One-half of the firstclassmen are granted liberty each weekend from afternoon meal formation Saturday until evening meal formation Sunday.

Midshipmen, first class, are permitted to ride in automobiles. They are not permitted to drive an automobile while within the seven mile limit.

They may visit their classmates during the extension of lights period after the taps inspector has checked their room.

Firstclassmen will not be assigned to the awkward squad, and will not be assigned extra duty. Other punishment such as restriction, confinement, and deprivation of privileges will be employed.

In addition to extra first class privileges, Midshipmen of the second class whose performance of duty and record of conduct and aptitude are of the required standards may be granted as a special privilege one weekend liberty during each of the two terms of the academic year 1947-48. Not more than fifty per cent of the second class assigned to each company may be granted liberty at the same time.

Also, second classmen may be granted town liberty on Wednesday afternoons from 1530 until evening meal formation.

U. S. COAST GUARD

A memorial to the late Admiral Russell R. Waesche, wartime commandant of the United States Coast Guard, was dedicated at Arlington National Cemetery on 1 Nov. in the presence of high ranking officers of all the military services and representatives of the Department of National Defense and the Treasury Department. Plans for the memorial were sponsored by the Coast Guard Warrant Officers and Chief Warrant Officers Association.

Admiral Joseph F. Farley, Commandant, has announced that 12,000 Coast Guard veterans discharged since December 1941, are eligible for honorable discharges and have not applied for them.

The Coast Guard has been actively engaged in fire fighting and rescue and evacuation operations in Maine, together with Navy, Army and Air Force units and various civilian organizations, during the recent disastrous fires. The areas of greatest activity were in the vicinity of Bar Harbor on Mt. Dester Island and in the Biddeford area, where the Commander of the Eastern Area coordinated Coast Guard facilities. On 23 Oct., the Coast Guard evacuated 320 persons from the Bar Harbor area.

Development of an improved type of life preserver has progressed to the point where the contractor has submitted a stripped down model for Headquarters' inspection. The principal difference of the new jacket from the standard kapok life preserver is a special type of collar designed to afford better protection for the head and neck when diving into the water. Worn out of the water, the collar lays back away from the neck and shoulders so as to afford the greatest comfort to the wearer.

Martin Rockets

To Lead The Space Race!

DEEPEST PENETRATION . . . into space will be made with Neptune-type super-rockets now being built by Martin. Capable of attaining speeds as high as 8,500 feet per second 75 seconds after launching, these huge missiles will reach heights of more than 235 miles . . . almost twice the altitude attained by the V-2 rockets. They will be used by our Navy for experimental purposes.

Building of the Neptune is another example of Martin's leadership in advanced scientific research. Intensive research and development like this have enabled Martin to consistently produce advanced-type aircraft for our Military Services during the past 34 years. Look to Martin research for the great, new aircraft of the future . . . for sensational developments in rocketry, plastics, rotary-wing aircraft, electronics, new methods of propulsion and other advanced scientific fields.

"The Army and Navy Journal is established in the interests of no party; it will be controlled by no clique. Its independence will be absolute. Avoiding all personal and political bias, its influence will be directed solely to the inculcation of sound military ideas, and to the elevation of the public service in all its departments."—From Vol. 1, No. 1, of the Army and Navy Journal, published August 29, 1893.

SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 8, 1947

"No place will be safe unless we have an adequate Army, Navy, and Air Force to guard ourselves against any eventuality."—FLEET ADMIRAL WILLIAM F. HALSEY, JR.

IN his Armistice Day Proclamation President Truman calls upon the Nation to rededicate itself to the grateful use of the peace it has won out of the holocaust of war. Paralleling this should be a firm resolve to preserve that peace, not by the methods which failed us after World War I but by keeping our protective forces so strong, so well trained, and so modernly equipped as to discourage potential aggressors from breaching the peace. There are many similarities between the peace today and the peace won by General of the Armies John J. Pershing and the Allied Forces in 1919. President Wilson defined the Armistice as being an "Armed Standstill," which is in effect what we have today. It is history, however, that the Armed Standstill did not last long, for within a very short period we stripped our Army to a mere caretaking force for military posts and scrapped ships and building programs that were planned to assure our supremacy on the seas. Upon the recommendations of General Pershing Congress enacted a modest but sound National Defense Act which, if followed, would have kept in being a force large enough to have discouraged aggression or, if forced into war, to have provided a more suitable base upon which to build the vast combat machine required by modern warfare. General Pershing also favored a system of military training for the youth of America to keep them efficient and fit and to fortify them against the rigors of war. But such was the national apathy that Congress failed to make the necessary appropriations to live up to the Defense Act and no action was taken on the Military Training project. That this neglect was a direct and principal factor in engaging us in World War II is now evident. On this Armistice Day the Nation must resolve to profit by its experience since 1919 and to so build its defenses that the newly won peace may be long preserved. Not only must we maintain a Regular Army, Navy, and Air Force to carry out our international obligations in occupying the beaten aggressors and supplying the forces for the United Nations, but large enough to leave us a suitable training force at home for the National Guard and Reserves plus a ready combat force for the defense of the Nation. Industry must be kept constantly prepared through education orders and production orders for new equipment to keep the Forces up-to-date. Research and development must be sedulously pursued. Universal Military Training must be put into operation. And to make the Services attractive to the highest type of personnel and to keep those who are now patriotically devoting their lives to the Nation's defenses, the scale of pay should be given a substantial upward revision. All this will require appropriations that may seem large when compared with those of the 20's and 30's, but they will be exceedingly small compared with the cost of the war their neglect would provoke.

WHEN the President's Air Policy Commission makes its report next January it should without question take a positive stand for the revival of a progressive program of lighter-than-air development for the Armed Forces. The case has been ably and forcefully presented to the Commission by Vice Admiral C. E. Rosendahl, USN (Ret), who is today the world's foremost authority on this neglected phase of aeronautics. Admiral Rosendahl pointed out that Naval policy from 1916 until the beginning of this year contained a provision that the Service "build and maintain rigid airships as necessary to explore and develop their usefulness for naval purposes; and to cooperate with other agencies in developing commercial airships." However, since the loss of the Macon nothing has been done, and now the new draft of Naval Policy dated 23 Jan. 1947 omits this provision entirely. Even the program for the patrol blimps was allowed to lag so that when World War II came and they were so sorely needed to combat the submarine menace, there had to be a hurried building program based on old designs. Yet the lighter-than-aircraft proved itself an essential weapon both in World Wars I and 2, and, as Admiral Rosendahl pointed out, the big rigid craft offers even greater potentialities in the war of the future. Because of its great carrying capacity and large space for the setting up of radar and electronic equipment, its long range and staying powers, and its ability to hover in one spot, the rigid dirigible could be fitted out as "electronic sentinels" and serve not only as detectors and relayers of vital information, but "through use of robots and other devices adaptable to carriage and use by large airships, they could undoubtedly be developed into interceptors and deflectors of some forms of expected enemy effort." The practicability of employing dirigibles as aerial airplane carriers, storing, launching and recovering conventional heavier-than-airplanes, already has been demonstrated. The success of the German Graf Zeppelin and Hindenburg in making 181 ocean crossings marred only by a fire caused by their use of hydrogen, should point the way to their use as long range cargo and passenger transports for military as well as commercial use. The United States has a virtual monopoly of, and a relatively cheap method of producing, the helium which makes lighter-than-aircraft safe. Mr. P. W. Litchfield, President of the Goodyear Aircraft Corporation, told the Committee if we are to be ready with a wartime airship organization we must develop it and see that it has work to do during the peace-time years, and warned that "if the military services are not to have the time, funds, and inclination for this task" some other promotional agency must be created. This step should not be necessary. Rather the Commission should recommend and the President and Congress approve a renewed program of dirigible development for the Armed Forces, making use of our natural helium resources, and giving to us the benefit of this potentially valuable weapon for defense.

Service Humor

R.H.I.P.

From the Atlantic Wing Newsletter of 20 October comes the amusing tale of R.H.I.P. at work—(for the uninitiated, R.H.I.P. stands for "rank hath its privileges")—as scuttled by NATSmen at the Washington Terminal: "Upon recently departing VR-1 NATS Detachment Washington for California, a flag officer told this one on himself when someone brought up the question of bunk status. After a paroxysm of laughter, he related that a few nights previously as he checked in at Moffett Field for VR-3's eastbound Hotshot flight, he yawned deliciously in anticipation of a luxurious night's slumber in the plane's bunk. Luckily for him, his senior, another traveling Rear Admiral, had cancelled his plans to return on the same flight. Time marched on. He could hardly wait to get aboard. About 10 minutes before the flight closed, his senior fellow traveller hurried into the terminal announcing his plans had been changed. Our friend sighed wistfully. That took care of the bunk. A few minutes later, a Vice Admiral appeared, and the bunk changed hands again. Shortly thereafter, a General marched in and the Navy relinquished its nocturnal luxury to the Army. Everyone sighed again and ambled out in resigned fashion to board the flight. At that moment, with a rush and a hush, Fleet Admiral Halsey climbed out of his car, walked aboard the aircraft, and settled down for the night... that's right... in the bunk."

A Broken Spirit

A man and his wife were suffering from seasickness while their young son seemed to be enjoying the situation. Finally the mother mustered courage and voice enough to say: "John, I wish you would speak to Willie."

The father, unable to lift his head, said feebly:

"Hello, Willie."

SERVICE NEWS AND GOSSIP

Foreign Affairs—There is every evidence that the "cold war" is being won by the United States—evidence ranging from Communist losses in the French elections to tightening of restrictions on and even expulsion of American correspondents in the Soviet zone, the latter suggesting that despite Red vigilance some "free" information succeeds in penetrating the Iron curtain.

It follows that the Kremlin may well adopt a new diplomatic tack, but it does not follow that this would mean plain sailing for the western democracies. Most of the predictions of a new Russian attitude deal with an expected softening on the questions of the Austrian and German peace treaties, but American officials are skeptical if hopeful, and inclined to expect that any concessions will be more apparent than real.

This is particularly true in relation to the most prevalent of the current crop of rumors: that the Russians will propose, at the November council of foreign ministers in London, that all the Allies withdraw their occupation forces from Germany immediately. It would be not only in the pattern of the similar proposal on Korea, but eminently logical from the Russian point of view, since Red Army troops would be on the German border following such a withdrawal, while American forces would be 3,000 miles away, on the logistically undesirable side of an ocean.

Secretary of State Marshall—neither optimistic nor pessimistic—leaves for London on 20 November, a week ahead of the Council meeting and only a few days after Congress reconvenes to take up the question of emergency aid and the Marshall Plan of long-term rehabilitation in Europe. That program, product of the cooperative but not joint labors of 16 European nations and the American State Department, is about ready for presentation to Congress. Senator Taft's statement that aid is necessary means that not the fact but the amount of emergency aid will be at issue in the impending session. Administration proposals will be not appropriation or even approval of the $22,400,000,000 of the European plan, but authority to cooperate with these nations, by an appropriation of six to seven billions for the first year. Supervising the expenditure will be a European Recognition Corporation made up of three directors to be appointed by the President, two to be appointed by the House of Representatives and two by the President pro tempore of the Senate. Such a corporation might well prove embarrassing to the Administration since the grants it will make necessarily will affect our relations with the receiving country. In addition to the appropriation it is expected that Congress will expand the authority of the Export-Import Bank and increase its appropriation. This would enable that institution to finance raw materials and goods other than the food, fuel and fertilizer gifts to be made by the ERC. There is talk too, of giving the Treasury authority to make available up to three billions for a European stabilization fund should it be needed. In the matter of inflation controls which the President will discuss in his message to the Congress, it is definitely decided that there shall be no rationing or price control, but rather allocation of scarce materials at the producer-processor level, continuation of export controls, and maintenance of taxes at present levels; appropriation of $642,000,000 for emergency purchases of food and fuel, and $400,000,000 additional for the occupation costs in Germany and Japan, largely representing increases from the proposed American assumption of British dollar costs in Germany.

The Herter Committee in its expected report will emphasize the importance of German recovery and such an expression of opinion undoubtedly will enlarge the guide allocation of goods and loans which will be made.

Negotiations in Washington on the new division of the German occupation burden are not completed, due to political uncertainty—among the British, as to the future of the Labor government in view of recent Conservative gains in local elections, and in the United States as to the Congressional action on the Marshall Plan. In the long run, a change in the cost allocations in the Anglo-American occupation zone has meaning only if the way is cleared for the zone to be self-supporting within a general European recovery—both drawing strength from and contributing strength to the Marshall Plan.

In the United Nations, the wordy split between the Russians and the Americans continues. The Political and Security Committee has approved the creation of a special commission to supervise the election of Korean representatives to appear before the UN, looking to establishment of a provisional government prior to complete independence. The Soviet bloc, accusing the U. S. of terror in the southern zone of Korea and attempts to establish a police state, announced it would boycott this commission.

China's Foreign Minister Wang Shih-chieh has returned from Washington talks amid reports of Nationalist gains against the Communists in Manchuria, and his first public statements indicated disagreement in Chinese government circles on the Ryukyu Islands. Premier Chang Chun had said the Chinese wanted the islands by cession in the Japanese peace treaty, but Mr. Wang suggested that was not a firm demand. The point is important to the United States, since Okinawa is held to be an essential base for the United States after occupation troops are withdrawn from the Japanese mainland.

In the question of the partition of Palestine into independent Jewish and Arab states, the United States has dropped its suggestion to the UN General Assembly that a special volunteer international constabulary be recruited by UN for policing the Palestine transition, and proposed instead that the British keep their troops there during the transition period. British reaction was decidedly unfavorable. Russia has proposed that the Security Council, not the Assembly, act on Palestine, and Canada has taken the same view, arguing that only the Security Council has the force to back its decisions, the Assembly being limited to recommendations and pleas.

Nominations of New Officers—Under plans now under consideration at the White House the President may not submit to the Senate when it reassembles 17 Nov., the nominations of approximately 6,000 officers of the Army and Air Force and a few hundred officers of the Navy, all of whom were given recess appointments in the Regular Establishments after Congress adjourned 26 July. Because the President does not want to submit any other business to the Congress than the two specific projects for which it is being called—i.e. to fight inflation and to give interim aid to Europe—he wants to withhold the submission of all nominations until after the second session formally assembles 7 Jan. 1948. On the other hand, he does not want to do anything to jeopardize the legality of the recess appointments he has made, so therefore he has asked the Attorney General to rule on the question.

The point is an involved one. The Constitution (paragraph 3 of Section 2, Article II) provides: "The President shall have power to fill up all vacancies that may happen during the recess of the Senate, by granting Commissions which shall expire at the end of their next session." This was adopted in order that the President may not be hampered in filling vacancies while Congress is not in session, but at the same time to require that the next session of Congress act upon the appointments to make them final. It would appear on the surface that the appointments made since Congress adjourned, 26 July, would expire at the end of the next meeting of Congress. But the Constitution does not say "meeting" it says "session" and technically the meeting that will begin 17 Nov. is still part of the first session, for when they adjourned 26 July it was under a concurrent resolution which stated that the Houses would stand adjourned until 2 Jan. 1948 or the third day after the members had been notified by the leaders to reassemble. Thus the 17 Nov. meeting will not be a special session, but will merely be a continuation of the first session. The Second Session does not begin until 7 Jan. 1948, so it would seem that the recess appointments will be good, without nomination or confirmation, until the end of the Second Session, which will be sometime in 1948. There would not seem to be any doubt as to the legality of the recess appointments inasmuch as the President sent the nominations to the Senate at the time of the appointments and they were returned to the White House with the notation that the Senate was then in session. However, it is on all these points that the Attorney General will rule, and there is no doubt that the President will not take any steps which will jeopardize the status of those whom he has appointed.

Army Chaplains Corps—Chaplain (Maj. Gen.) Luther D. Miller, Chief of Chaplains, USA, was present at the luncheon session of the semiannual meeting of the General Commission on Chaplains, 29 Oct., in Washington, D. C. Chaplain Miller addressed the group and presented on behalf of the U. S. Army a certificate of appreciation for the work of the General Commission, which was received by the Commission president, Dr. Joseph C. Hazen of New York City.

Chaplain Miller, Chaplain (Col.) Patrick J. Ryan, Deputy Chief of Chaplains, USA, and Chaplain (Maj.) Henry Tavel, Assistant, Personnel Division, Office Chief of Chaplains, USA, joined in a graveside tribute to 20 Pacific heroes, returned home for reinterment in Arlington National Cemetery, 30 Oct.

The Chief of Chaplains, USA, and Chaplain (Col.) Charles I. Carpenter, Headquarters, Army Air Forces, were present at the Langley Field Chapel, Va., where a memorial stained glass window was dedicated 2 Nov.

Bishop C. L. Russell, Bishop of the New England, North and South Carolina and Washington and Virginia Conferences of the Colored Methodist Episcopal Church, was presented with a Certificate of Appreciation by the Chief of Chaplains.

Signal Corps—Maj. Gen. Francis H. Lanahan, Jr., Commanding General at Ft. Monmouth, announced recently that the Headquarters of the Signal Corps Engineering Laboratories at Shark River Hills, N. J., has been moved to the Squier Signal Laboratory at Ft. Monmouth.

Col. Fred W. Kunesch, Chief, Industrial Mobilization Branch, Office of the Chief Signal Officer, has been named Chairman of the Army-Navy Munitions Board Committee on Communications and Electronics Equipment. The initial objective of the Committee is to determine the capability of industry to produce the quantities and categories of equipment needed in an emergency.

Quartermaster Corps—The Quartermaster Corps reading program is becoming increasingly popular both in the ZI and overseas. The program enables an officer to obtain current and authoritative books on such subjects as clothing and textiles, economics, contemporary affairs, education, psychology, and leadership. By reporting on six books in a chosen field an officer receives one reading course credit. The value of the program lies in the attainment by the individual officer of a higher level of knowledge of techniques and methods and an acquaintance with present-day trends and evaluations, which, in turn, is of value to the Corps and to the Army.

The following officers have received reading course credits: Contemporary Affairs—Col. Frederick A. Ward, director of supply, Ft. Bliss, Tex.; Lt. Col. Patrick W. Harrington, miscellaneous U. S. Army Group, Ottawa, Canada; Capt. John Alger, Quartermaster School, Camp Lee, Va.; 1st Lt. John C. Kulp, Quartermaster School, Camp Lee, Va.; 1st Lt. Ralph E. McCoy, QM Reserve, Hopewell, Va.; 2nd Lt. Gordon H. Costing, Petroleum Engineering Course, University of Pittsburgh. Economics—1st Lt. Ralph H. Miller, Jr., Staff and Faculty, Quartermaster School, Camp Lee, Va.

Transportation Corps—Col. Ralph I. Glasgow, TC, will come to the Office, Chief of Transportation, Washington, D. C., upon his return from the Far East in January, 1948. Upon the expiration of sixty days' leave granted him, Colonel Glasgow will report for duty.

Col. Donald C. Foote, Transportation Corps, until recently on duty in China, has been returned for hospitalization and is now a patient at Walter Reed General Hospital, Washington, D. C.

Captain Harlan M. Freeman, Transportation Corps, who recently completed a detail in industry with steamship and stevedoring companies in New York City, has been assigned to Manila, P. I., effective 1 Dec.

Eight Transportation Corps officers of Military Railway Service specialty, headed by Lt. Col. James R. Trudop, Ft. Eustis, Va., are scheduled for shipment to Korea in January. They will act as advisors in the management, operation and maintenance of way of the Korean Railroads.

Finance Department—Col. Emmett J. Bean, Chief of the Management Division, Office of the Chief of Finance, was the guest speaker last Monday evening at a meeting of Finance Department Reservists in New York City. His subject was "Officer Requirements in the Finance Department." Colonel Bean also covered in his talk the functions performed by the various Divisions of the Office of the Chief of Finance in Washington as well as its field activities which are presently strung out across the U. S. and overseas.

The meeting in New York was sponsored by Finance Reserve Officers and Enlisted Reservists of the 136th OR Finance Group and was well attended. Col. William Schiff, the Group Commanding Officer, introduced the speaker.

Also attending the meeting were Colonels Stephen B. Elkins, Ralph A. Koch, Morris C. Trooper and Howard F. Wortham.

Judge Advocate General's Department—At a conference of all officers, JAGO, on 31 Oct., Col. Alfred C. Bowman, former Senior Civil Affairs Officer in the Region of Venezia, Giulia, which includes Trieste, gave a lecture on the various phases of military government for that area.

In connection with a five weeks' inspection tour of all of the war crimes installations in the European Theater, Col. Edward H. Young, who has just returned, reported that on his visits to the Judge Advocate's Sections of the various commands, he observed that there was keen interest in the work of dispensing with schedules that are still very full. At Frankfurt, in addition to the normal legal work of the Theater Judge Advocate, Col. James L. Harbaugh, jr., has to devote considerable time to final results of the war crimes cases. He is aided by a three man board of review which handles about twelve records a week. Col. Irvin Schindler, Deputy to Colonel Harbaugh, indicated that the military justice work of their office is still very heavy.

At Munich and Dachau, the Deputy Theater Judge Advocate in charge of the operation of the war crimes trials, Lt. Col. Cleo E. Straight, has nine military tribunals functioning and is progressing toward a termination date early in 1948, although the post-trial work will probably not be completed until next summer. Lt. Col. C. R. Bard, S.J.A., U. S. Forces in Vienna informed Colonel Young that although the Army war crimes trials in Austria are about completed, post-trial work and a sudden increase of courts-martial cases is keeping his office open long hours. Lt. Col. C. J. Hauck, S.J.A., U. S. Constabulary Forces, Hiedelburg, Germany, was enthusiastic over the schools on military justice now functioning under his command. In London Col. Robert M. Springer, JAGD, on special assignment as the United States Delegate to the Allied War Crimes Commission, predicted that he would complete his present detail by next summer.

Bureau of Medicine and Surgery—Rear Adm. M. D. Willcuts, Assistant Chief of the Bureau of Medicine and Surgery for professional and personnel operations, and Capt. Leroy D. Fothergill, left the United States on 4 Nov. for an extended tour through Europe and the Near East. The two doctors, experts in the field of epidemiology, will conduct a survey of the cholera situation in those areas and evaluate results of the treatment following the Navy's contribution of 60,000 pounds of badly needed vaccines and drugs. They will confer with the Naval Medical Research Institute No. 3 in Cairo, Egypt, which is assisting the Egyptian government in fighting cholera.

National Guard—Tennessee and Idaho completed organization of all their allotted National Guard air units during the week ending 24 Oct. Federal recognition of Headquarters, 118th Fighter Group, at Nashville completed organization of the ten air units allotted to the Tennessee National Guard, and the Weather Station, 190th Fighter Squadron, at Boise, was the fourth and final air unit of the Idaho National Guard to be recognized.

A total of 23 states, Hawaii and the District of Columbia now have activated their complete allotment of air units. In addition to Tennessee and Idaho, they include Arizona, Arkansas, Connecticut, Delaware, Florida, Georgia, Kansas, Maine, Maryland, Mississippi, Nebraska, New Hampshire, New Mexico, North Dakota, South Carolina, South Dakota, Utah, Vermont, Washington, and Wyoming.

Tactical air units of the National Guard are now nearly 75 per cent organized. Of the 72 Fighter and 12 Light Bombardment Squadrons planned, 52 Fighter and nine Light Bombardment Squadrons have been granted federal recognition.

Company C, 140th Infantry, Missouri National Guard, at Marston, a town with a population of 468, has 120 men in the company, a figure equal to almost one-fourth the population.

Three additional states and Puerto Rico exceeded their entire recruiting campaign quotas as enlistments in the National Guard reached a new high during the week ending 25 Oct. Maj. Gen. Kenneth F. Cramer, chief of the National Guard Bureau, announced that a total of 46,566 men have been enlisted since the campaign began 16 Sept.

Army Reserves—Section II, Department of the Army Circular 29, deals with the detail of Reserve officers in the Inspector General's Department. Reserve officers may be detailed in the Inspector General's Department in Reserve Units within positions authorized in tables of organization. Commanding generals of area commands are authorized to detail Reserve officers in the Inspector General's Department upon recommendations of commanders of Reserve Units.

An officer selected for detail in the Inspector General's Department should possess the following general qualifications: (1) A comprehensive knowledge of inspection procedures, Army organization, and administration. (2) Unquestionable integrity and good judgment. (3) Generally be considered as an outstanding officer in his basic arm or service with exceptionally well rounded experience.

MRS. DONALD WORTHINGTON SPICER,
the former Mary Helen Tildsley, daughter of Col. John M. Tildsley, USMC (Ret.) and Mrs. Tildsley, whose marriage to Lt. Spicer (MC) USN, took place in October at the Naval Academy chapel.

The former Surgeon General Norman T. Kirk, who with Mrs. Kirk now makes his home at Montauk, L. I., was in Washington at the Medical Center during the week, en route to Florida, where they will spend the winter. Before leaving Long Island they were luncheon guests at the Maidstone Club at East Hampton of their neighbor, Mr. Edward R. Alexander who entertained a house party in connection with the marriage of his daughter, Sylvia to Mr. Robert L. Conkling, which took place 25 October.

The commanding general of the Medical Center and Mrs. George C. Beach have had guests at their quarters there, Mr. and Mrs. Harry M. Harrison of San Antonio, Tex., being with them a week.

Wives of officers of the Supply Corps, U. S. N., held the first of a series of luncheons Wednesday at the Army-Navy Country Club. Hostesses were Mrs. W. A. Buck, wife of the chief of Bureau of Supplies and Accounts; Mrs. E. D. Foster, wife of Rear Admiral Foster, Mrs. W. W. Honaker, wife of Capt. Honaker, fiscal director and assistant chief; and Mrs. Messenheimer, whose husband is Comdr. C. A. Messenheimer, Atlantic Liaison Officer in the Bureau of Supplies and Accounts. Wives of officers on duty who assisted were Medames Robert H. Rich, C. L. Loring, E. F. Metzger and H. A. Peel.

General Thomas Holcomb, former Commandant of the Marine Corps, now U. S. Minister to the Union of South Africa, who with Mrs. Holcomb has been enjoying a four months' leave in the States, sailed for his diplomatic post this past week. A round of festivities served as stirrup cups to this popular pair. They spent the week-end as guests of Quartermaster General, USMC, and Mrs. P. T. Hill who were hosts at a dinner party in their honor. Gen. and Mrs. Holcomb themselves entertained at dinner Saturday evening at the Army and Navy Club, and the night before they were guests at the Chevy Chase Club of Mrs. Holcomb's sister, Miss Eudora Clover, both daughters of the late Admiral and Mrs. Richardson Clover. Mr. J. Frederick Roy, who was Gen. Holcomb's aide while serving as a member of the Marine Corps, as a Major, gave a dinner party for him and Mrs. Holcomb at the 1925 F. Street Club. Mr. Roy's guests were headed by the present Commandant of the Corps and Mrs. Alexander Vandegrift. Other guests were Gen. and Mrs. Hill, Lt. Gen. and Mrs. Wade Haislip, Maj. Gen. and Mrs.

The wedding will take place in June.

The marriage of Miss Anieta C. Bleen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Bleen, of Buffalo, N. Y., to Maj. Dwayne Mengel, 14th Air Force Staff Chaplain, was held 26 Oct. at the Orlando, Fla., Air Base Chapel.

Mrs. Mengel is a graduate art student, having specialized in oil portraits.

Major Mengel, a native of Gibsonburg, Ohio, attended Ohio Northern University, and took post graduate work at Boston University. During the war the Major was staff chaplain with the 14th Air Force in China.

Major Mengel and his bride will make their home at Altamonte Springs, Florida.

Mr. and Mrs. Percy C. Shaffer of Roselle, N. J., announce the engagement of their daughter, Barbara Louise, to Capt. Charles F. Austin, of the Army Audit Agency, Office of the Chief of Finance, Washington, D. C. The wedding will take place in the Post Chapel at Fort Myer, Va. 6 Dec. Captain Austin is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Oscar C. Austin of Linn, Kansas. He was recently integrated into the Regular Army.

Mrs. Vere Buckingham Edwards of Coraopolis Heights, Penn., has announced the engagement of her daughter Lt. (Jg) Ruth Buckingham Edwards, Waves, to Lt. Commander Joseph M. Tully, Jr. U.S.N. son of Col. and Mrs. Joseph M. Tully, Cav., now stationed at San Juan, Puerto Rico. The bride elect, stationed in Alameda, Calif., is a graduate of Highland Hall, and Wells College. Commander Tully is an Annapolis graduate of the class of '41.

Miss Marian Moore and Mr. Edwin Brackett were married 25 Oct. in All Saints Episcopal Church, Pasadena, Calif. The bride is the daughter of Col. Anderson T. W. Moore, CE, U.S.A., and Mrs. Moore. Colonel Moore is at present District Engineer, Los Angeles.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a traditional white satin wedding gown with lace shoulder drape, sweetheart crown with fingertip veil. Miss Doris Sullivan was maid of honor. The bride's brother, Thomas, was best man. Lieutenant Colonels Joseph O. Killian and Earl C. Paules, Corps of Engineers, were ushers. A reception followed at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Leroy Main of Arcadia, Calif.

The bride graduated from Stephens College, Columbia, Mo., and then entered the Womens Army Corps. She served at various stations in the United States and in the European Theater at Frankfurt, Germany. It was while serving in Germany that she met the bridegroom.

He is a graduate of the University of Georgia and served as an officer in the 100th Division, participating in the Battle of the Bulge. Following an autotour of Southern California, they will be at home after 15 Nov. at 316 East Washington Street, Fayetteville, Tenn.

Plans have been completed for the coming marriage of Miss Marjorie Ann Wahl, daughter of Mrs. Blanche Wahl, Rye, N. Y., and the late John Wahl, and Capt. William F. Spalding of Ft. Belvoir, Va.

Captain Spalding, son of Col. and Mrs. Donald P. Spalding of Fort Ord, Calif., was graduated from Harvard Military School, Hollywood, in 1938, attended Massachusetts Institute of Technology, where he became a member of the Kappa Sigma fraternity, and was graduated from the U. S. Military Academy in 1944 as a star man. During the war he served overseas in Europe and the Philippines with the 126th Engineer Combat Battalion.

The couple will be married 21 Dec., at West Point.

On Saturday afternoon, 1 Nov., at the Post Chapel, Ft. Knox, Ky., Miss Virginia Lee Weir, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Weir of Wellington, Mo., was married to Capt. Edgar B. Colladay, Jr., FA, USA, the son of Brig. Gen. Edgar B. Colladay, retired, and Mrs. Colladay of Burlingame, Calif.

The ceremony was performed by Chaplain John T. Axton.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a long trained white satin gown, and a fingertip tulle veil, and carried a cascade bouquet of white roses.

The bride's sister, Mrs. Philip Long of St. Louis, was matron of honor. Other attendants were Mrs. Charles Fletcher, Miss Peggy Chaudoin, Miss Evelyn Hawk and Miss Margaret Orgabright.

The best man was Capt. William D. Thorne, and the ushers were Maj. Charles Fletcher, Maj. P. T. Russell, Capt. A. P. Croonquist, Capt. William Bolton, Capt. A. L. Bragalone, and Lt. Denham Short.

A reception was held at the Officers' Club.

Captain Colladay is on duty with the UMT Experimental Unit at Ft. Knox.

At a cocktail party on 28 Oct., at the Officers' Club, Nanking, China, Col. and Mrs. Harry C. Mewshaw announced the engagement of their daughter June, to Capt. Harry Erwin Ruhsam, USA, son of Mr. and Mrs. Erwin H. Ruhsam, of Albert Lea, Minn.

Miss Mewshaw is a graduate of the University of Arizona and is a member of the Kappa Alpha Theta sorority. She is a niece of Col. Harold Thompson, (Ret.) and Mrs. Thompson of Logana Beach, Calif.

Captain Ruhsam is an honor graduate of Iowa State College, Class of 1942. His fraternity is Alpha Sigma Phi. His war service was in India, Burma, and China.

The wedding will take place in January.

Mr. and Mrs. Willard Stuart McKay of Greenwich, Conn., announce the engagement of their daughter, Patricia Elizabeth, to Lt. Milton Keith Pigg, USA, son of Col. and Mrs. Albert Milton Pigg of Arlington, Va. Miss McKay is a graduate of the Greenwich Academy and Mt. Holyoke College, class of '46. Lt. Pigg graduated from the U. S. Military Academy in 1943. During the war he served in the South Pacific. He received a degree of Bachelor of Civil Engineering from Cornell University in 1947.

Brig. Gen. James Michael Fitzmaurice, USAF, and Mrs. Fitzmaurice announce the marriage of their daughter, Patricia Jane, to 1st Lt. Roland D. Foley, Jr., USMA, class of '45, son of Mrs. Roland D. Foley and the late Mr. Foley of Kcmore, N. Y.

The wedding took place 14 Oct. in the Lutheran Church, Badkissingen, Germany. The bride who was given in marriage by her father, was lovely in a traditional white satin wedding gown. Her finger-tip veil of illusion fell from a Juliet cap of seed pearls. Her maid-of-honor was Miss Rowland Jernglin, and Miss Marjorie Fitzmaurice was her sister's junior bridesmaid.

Lieutenant Foley had as his best man Lt. John S. Stoer. The ushers were Lieutenants Deval Brett, John Ludlow, Clarence Slack and Earl Burton.

After the ceremony a luncheon and reception were held at the quarters of the bride's parents, after which the young couple left for a honeymoon at Bad Weisse and Berthegaden. They will be at home after 1 Nov. at the Air Base, Neubiberg, Germany.

The bride whose parents expect to sail for the United States late in October, attended Leland Stanford University at (Please turn to Page 262)

KILAUEA MILITARY CAMP, T. H.

24 Oct. 1947

"Rest and Relaxation" is the theme of Kilauea Military Camp, year-round vacation spot for servicemen stationed in the Hawaiian Islands. Situated on the scenic Orchid Island, KMC, provides the ideal surroundings for that long sought vacation in the mountains, with a program of trips and activities to meet the needs and whims of every guest. The camp is situated between Hawaii's two active volcanoes, Mauna Loa and Kilauea, both of which produce an awesome spectacle for the fortunate guests who are visiting at the time of an eruption. The cool climate offers the desired change from the perpetually balmy weather on the other islands. The invigorating air provides the impetus for horseback riding, bicycling, tennis, dancing, hiking, hunting, golf, and various other sports. Daily tours transport visitors and guests to various points of interest on the island, breakfast picnics and steak barbecues are added attractions. Kilauea Military Camp has existed since 1916 as an Army rest camp. Almost all enlisted men, army officers and their families attached to posts in the Pacific area have at one time been entertained at the camp. KMC now enters a new phase of her history, as the camp has been opened to all branches of the service. Navy, Marine Corps, and Coast Guard, as well as Army personnel now arrive daily by plane or LST to spend an unforgettable week of rest and fun at KMC.

NEWPORT, R. I.

3 Nov. 1947

The Naval Hospital at Newport now has its own chapel after years of using its auditorium for religious services. Located in an unusually attractive setting on the waterfront, just inside the main gate, the structure originally was at Davisville, where it was built for the Sea Bees. Formal dedicatory services will be held late in November, when Rear Adm. William H. Thomas, chief of Navy Chaplains, will officiate. Services are now being conducted each Sunday, with Chaplain F. A. Burke, celebrating the Catholic masses and Chaplain Earl D. Greenlaw conducting the Protestant services. Col. H. P. Storke, deputy chief of staff of the First Army, was a visitor at Ft. Adams recently to be honored guest at the monthly dinner meeting of the Army Advisory Committee of the post which was also attended

AAB, WALLER FIELD, TRINIDAD, B. W. I.

12 Oct. 1947

Col. John M. Schweizer, Jr., Commanding Officer of Waller Field, was ordered to assume complete command of this U. S. Military Installation, lend-leased, in the Caribbean. The change of command was issued by the Caribbean Defense Command, Panama. At this writing, the new directive did not officially end the life of Fort Road. It is felt that such a directive, in normal process, will follow shortly. All Ground Force personnel have been ordered to be reassigned or transferred. Colonel Schweizer's new orders give him complete responsibility for supervision and direction of the entire U. S. installation as will be directed by Departments of the Army and Air Force policy.

Col. A. J. Becker, former Commanding Officer of the Ground Force unit on the Trinidad U. S. installation, used a giant four motorized Air Force Transport to enplane to Puerto Rico. The Ground Forces Colonel will enjoy a brief rest at San Juan before proceeding to the States and a new assignment.

CARIBBEAN DEFENSE COMMAND

25 Oct. 1947

Army Engineers will decorate trees in the Panama Jungle in plenty of time for Christmas this year. Plans are being made to begin early next week to cover the jungle hills with package after package of aluminum foil similar to that used in decorating Christmas trees.

The idea, developed by Col. Fremont Tandy, Caribbean Defense Command Engineer and one of his staff officers, Capt. William Hatcher, is to work certain hills with the bright and sparkling tinsel in order that they may be sighted from long distances by ground survey parties who are charting presently the unmapped areas of the Isthmus of Panama.

Ground parties, heavily laden with surveying material and jungle equipment must climb to the highest peak in certain areas to secure geodetic information. Unable, from the dense jungle to pick out the highest peak among several, they have often climbed several hills until the highest has been found.

Hereafter, aerial observers will select the peak by means of an airplane's altimeter and mark it. Several plans were devised but none seemed to hold as much promise as the so-called Christmas tree scheme.

Clinton Cates, and Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Conger Pratt.

At Miss Clover's dinner Gen. and Mrs. Hill were the ranking guests with others, including Rear Adm. and Mrs. Ezra Allen, Mr. and Mrs. Chester Barnett, Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Graves, Mrs. Draper Boncompagni, who as Marguerite Draper, daughter of U. S. Ambassador to Italy came out in Washington society with Mrs. Holcomb and Miss Clover, and others.

Gen. and Mrs. Holcomb shared honors at the cocktail party given by Gen. and Mrs. Vandegrift with Rear Admiral Charles A. Pownall, Governor of Guam and Commander Marianas, who flew in to Washington the other day and attended the sunset parade of the Marine Corps as the guest of Col. L. B. Creswell, commanding officer at the Marine Barracks and formerly deputy chief of staff on the Governor's staff at Guam. Gen. Holcomb reviewed the parade. Col. and Mrs. Creswell entertained Governor Pownall at dinner, whose guests included Capt. and Mrs. S. A. Shepard, and Capt. B. C. McCaffree with the hostess mother, Mrs. R. R. Belknap, widow of Admiral Belknap, visiting them from New York.

"After travelling 37 years, the one thing we are not going to do is to make an immediate tour" says Mrs. Vandegrift when questioned about their plans following the retirement of Gen. Vandegrift after the first of the year. Coming from the same part of Virginia, they look forward to living within sight of the Blue Ridge Mountains and Lynchburg beckons.

Chaplain and Mrs. Orville E. Fisher (retired) sold their home in Atlanta, Ga. and are now living at 606 Orange Ave., Clearwater, Fla.

Col. and Mrs. John E. Granade and daughters, Shirley and Gall, have moved to Bradenton, Florida and are living at 2525 Seventh Ave. W.

Col. and Mrs. William H. W. Reinburg have moved into their new home in Palma Sola Park, Bradenton, Florida. Their daughter Margo is attending The Southern College at Lakeland, Fla.

The Rodman Street home of Lt. and Mrs. Gerald J. Sullivan (USMA '24) was the scene of a delightful party for the younger set Saturday evening, 1 Nov. The guests, students of Sullivan School, of which Lt. Sullivan is the head, and members of the young service crowd, were received by Lt. and Mrs. Sullivan and the Misses "Cathy" and "Chita" Sullivan.

Halloween decorations gave a properly festive air to the large rooms—so adaptable to such a party the young crowd all agreed. Dancing was the high-light of the occasion, with talent skits and singing around the piano to lend a spice of variety. Large bowls of cider were to be found surrounded by doughnuts, popcorn—and the young revellers. Then—Intermission—Refreshments—and all too soon a grand party was over.

Weddings and Engagements

Palo Alto, Calif., prior to going to Germany.

The marriage of Miss Anne Johnson Young and Col. Richard Mattern Montgomery, USAF, was solemnized at General Headquarters Chapel, Tokyo, Japan, 22 Oct. Chaplain M. H. Willard of Johnson Field read the service.

The bride was given in marriage by Lt. Col. Edward Hurlbut.

Miss Young was attired in an afternoon suit of antique gold gaberdine. Her hat was a Kurt Richard model of leaf green trimmed with a crest of antique gold feather and matching veiling. Miss Young carried a muff of gold chrysanthemums.

Matron of honor was Mrs. George Wallace Roger Zethren. Colonel Montgomery was attended by Lt. Col. George Wallace Roger Zethren. The groomsmen were Lt. Col. Byron L. Paige, Lt. Col. Mark Curtis Bane, Jr., Lt. Col. James T. L. Schwenk and Lt. Col. John McCoy. Before the ceremony Mrs. W. L. McGreer sang "Because" and "I Love You Truly." Miss Mary Elizabeth Smith was at the organ.

A reception was held for 150 guests in the Peacock Court of the Imperial Hotel following the ceremony.

The bride and groom will spend their honeymoon at the Fujiya Hotel, Miyashita, Japan. They will reside at the Imperial Hotel, Tokyo, Japan, following their return.

Miss Young is the daughter of Mrs. William Berry Young and the late Mr. William Berry Young, Jr., of Montgomery, Ala. Miss Young attended Alabama College, Monteville, Ala.

Colonel Montgomery, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Montgomery, 5411 5th Avenue, Altoona, Pa., was graduated from the U. S. Military Academy in 1933. He is serving on the Joint Planning Staff in General MacArthur's Headquarters, Tokyo, Japan.

Miss Sylvia Ray Miller, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel L. Miller of the Bronx, New York City, was married 26 Oct. to CWO Victor Lawrence Wegard, USA, in a double ring ceremony at the Officers' Club, on Ft. Jay, N. Y., by Chaplain Joshua L. Goldberg, USN. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Wegard, also of the Bronx.

CWO Wegard had for his best man his brother, Mr. Ira S. Wegard. The bridegroom entered the service in 1936 from New York City and has had a versatile Army career, having spent 52 months overseas, including Trinidad, North Africa, Sicily, Italy and the European Theater, one of his most interesting assignments being that of secretary to General George S. Patton.

The ushers were Capt. Harry B. Hambleton, Jr., Capt. Ames L. Yates, Capt. Charles J. Klyde, 1st Lt. Samuel L. Kenison, CWO William G. Rice and WOJG Charles Lizza, all of the United States Army. Mr. Wegard is now assigned as Legal Administrative Assistant in the office of the First Army Judge Advocate.

The bride is a graduate of Hunter College and took her M.A. at Columbia University. She is a Secretarial Assistant with the United Nations and spent last winter in London and Paris participating in UN conferences.

A reception and buffet luncheon followed the ceremony, attended by approximately 100 guests.

Samoans Want Naval Rule

The Navy Department has announced that chiefs of the island of Tutuila, meeting in general assembly last week, adopted a resolution that American Samoa continue under the Naval civil administration. The assembly by acclamation gave the civil government a vote of confidence and pledged full support and cooperation.

"UNITED STATES
• AT WAR"

A limited number of copies of the Army and Navy Journal's historic volumes, "United States At War" is still available. This series, the first volume of which was published 7 December 1942 with succeeding volumes each year until the War's end, forms a complete history of World War II in authoritative articles written by Military, Naval and civilian leaders actually in charge of the operations in the active theaters, and at home. Profusely illustrated, they merit a place in every well balanced library.

A small number of each of the four volumes is ready for distribution at $3.00 per copy in paper binding and $5.00 in cloth binding. (Volume I is available only in paper binding.)

FOR YOUR FRIENDS
IN THE ARMED FORCES!

Racking your brains for a PERSONAL Christmas gift when every dollar counts for living expenses, there is a grand solution: A present of the ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL, The Gazette of the Land, Sea and Air.

A subscription to the ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL for husband, brother or sweetheart means that for fifty-two times in the coming year your Christmas thought will be refreshed in the mind of the recipient. It will be appreciated by the soldier, the sailor or the airman.

Because, in the weekly ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL there will be found all the news so vital to their welfare.

Because, all Executive and Congressional acts will be reported in its columns.

Because of its publication of official circulars and reports and matters of service interest.

Because of its discussions of foreign relations.

Because of its forthright editorials.

Because, going on 85 years young, it vigorously and forcefully advocates all policies important to the welfare of the Services and with equal vigor and force opposes those harmful to them.

To insure prompt delivery of this exceptional CHRISTMAS GIFT simply clip and mail the attached coupon immediately:

Financial Digest

A group of nine private tax experts, headed by Roswell Magill, former Under Secretary of the Treasury, recommended to the House Ways and Means Committee cuts in taxes on personal incomes, followed by lower tax rates on corporation earnings.

The group also submitted three other important proposals, as follows:

Allow husbands and wives to divide family incomes equally for reporting purposes.

Permit stockholders a reduction in personal income tax payments to compensate for taxes already paid by corporations on dividends they receive.

Authorize taxpayers to accumulate non-interest bearing Treasury bonds to pay their estate taxes.

The tenth member of the group, Matthew Woll, labor member, dissented to the report.

In a report to Congress Secretary of Commerce Harriman said that export control powers should be extended beyond next 29 Feb. when the Second Decontrol Act of 1947 expires. The power granted by the act covers authority to limit some imports, allocate some domestic supplies, and requisition goods for export by assigning priorities. Secretary Harriman said that the domestic economy must be protected against "the adverse effects of unrestricted exports," and that shipments must be directed to the areas where the need is greatest.

Merchant Marine

According to a report of the Maritime Transport Committee released last week restoration of Europe's merchant fleets through self-help agreements under the Marshall Plan is seen as providing 53-660,000 tons of merchant shipping by 1951. This would mean a fleet of 39,210,000 deadweight tons of dry cargo ships and 14,450,000 deadweight tons of tankers.

The acquisition of this tonnage will be made through an expanded European shipbuilding program, partially dependent upon steel imports from the United States and through the "purchase" of approximately three million deadweight tons from the United States, representing about 300 American ships.

Admiral W. H. P. Blandy, USN, Commander in Chief of the Atlantic Fleet, will address the annual banquet of the Society of Naval Architects and Marine Engineers 14 Nov. at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel, New York. The title of his address will be "The Future Value of Sea Power."

Senator Wherry (R-Neb.) has charged that the projected sale of 98 government-owned tankers to foreign buyers is a direct violation of the Merchant Ship Sales Act of 1946. Senator Wherry asked President Truman to hold up the transaction pending "reconsideration" of the matter, indicating that he would make such a request at a meeting of the Senate Small Business Committee, of which he is chairman. He said that there are still pending 126 applications for tankers from American citizens, and that under the law these have priority over foreign buyers.

The Maritime Commission has announced that 80 more chartered vessels will be returned to the government by private operators within the near future. As of 15 Oct. 1,246 ships were on charter in foreign flag services, compared to 1,264 30 Sept. Domestic operations in the same period increased from 51 ships 30 Sept. to 53 ships 15 Oct.

Reserve Units to Receive Colors

Ceremonies marking the official return on Armistice Day of colors or standards and battle honors to ground and service units of the Organized Reserve Corps throughout the country are in final stages of preparation, it was announced 7 Nov. by General Jacob L. Devers, Commanding General, Army Ground Forces.

Of the 6,000 Reserve combat and service type units activated to date, approximately 1,600 will receive their colors in the 11 Nov. observances, the AGF Commander stated.

Providing a link with the history and traditions of many of the famed combat units of World War II and earlier conflicts, colors will be presented to peacetime successors of these units which have been reactivated in the Organized Reserves.

Submarine School

Applications are desired for the class at the Submarine School, New London, Conn., convening about 5 July 1948. The length of the course will be six months.

Applications of volunteers for submarine training for this class are desired from officers not over 28 years of age and in the grade of lieutenant (jg) and ensign whose date of rank as ensign is prior to 30 June 1946.

Officers will not be ordered to the Submarine School until they have completed at least two years command service as of 1 July 1948. Further details of the class and qualifications are published in Bu Pers Circular Letter 202-47.

Coordinated Procurement

Secretary of Defense Forrestal announced 31 Oct. that progress is being made toward coordinated procurement by the three services. Time will be required, however, for realization of the achievements envisioned by the National Security Act.

Interdepartmental committees are engaged in the development of closer coordination in material inspection under the guidance of the Munitions Board. Steps are also being taken to speed the issuance of joint specifications for materials and progress has been made in the development of a uniform system of cataloging.

Enlisted Specialists

To speed the training of specialists the War Department has sent out instructions as follows:

"In order to meet pending critical specialist shortages and thereby enable each zone of interior command to accomplish its functions, it is urged that all possible action be taken by each zone of interior command to send qualified enlisted personnel currently assigned to its command to service schools on detached service. Personnel ordered to school on detached service will be returned to command ordering them to school immediately after completion of course of instruction to which ordered."

Seeks Photos of USMC Officers

The Commanding Officer of Marine Barracks, Guam, is desirous of obtaining photographs of the following officers:

Maj. Allen C. Kelton, USMC.
Maj. Paul S.C. Murphy, USMC.
Capt. William Brackett, USMC.
Capt. Henry O. Bisset, USMC.
1st Lt. Benjamin B. Woog, USMC.

Any information leading to obtaining these photographs would be greatly appreciated.

Captain Conway Honored

Capt. Granville Conway, president of the Cosmopolitan Shipping Company of New York, today was presented the President's Medal for Merit for outstanding wartime services as Deputy and Acting Administrator of the War Shipping Administration, Special Assistant to the Maritime Commission, and shipping advisor at the Yalta and Quebec Conferences.

Jewish Welfare Board

Mr. Abraham Feitelberg, formerly director of the Army and Navy personal service and veterans service departments of the National Jewish Welfare Board, has been selected as director of the Army and Navy division of the board, succeeding Mr. John Sills.

Mr. Feitelberg served with the Jewish Welfare Board in World Wars I and II.

Illegal Wearing Of Uniform

The Navy Department is submitting legislation for consideration at the coming session of Congress that would further amend existing law so as to make it "unlawful for any person not an officer or an enlisted man of the United States Army, Navy, Marine Corps, or Coast Guard to wear the duly prescribed uniform of these services, any distinctive part thereof, or a uniform any part of which is similar thereto" in the Canal Zone, Guam, American Samoa, and the Virgin Islands.

Explanatory of the request for the legislation, the Navy Department has stated that "there have been several cases of unauthorized persons wearing U. S. Navy uniforms in the Canal Zone. It has been established that no statutory authority exists to prohibit the wearing of service uniforms by unauthorized persons due to the historical development of the law applicable to the Canal Zone. Upon changing sovereignty in the Canal Zone, certain portions of existing law were continued in force, and portions of the United States law were made applicable. In establishing the Code of the Canal Zone nothing was included that would make the wearing of the specified uniforms or parts of them illegal."

Letters to the EditorArmy Warrant Appointments

Editor, Army & Navy Journal:

Having taken the War Department examination for promotion to the Temporary grade of Warrant Officer, Junior Grade (Administrative, Clerical), in March 1942 and having been placed on a list for probable future selection for appointment in the Regular Army, we believe that consideration should be given to appointment in the Regular Army, without further examination, all Warrant Officers now on a tentative list for probable future selection. The examinations given in March 1942 were quite comprehensive and it is reasonable to assume that successful completion of the examination and appointment as WOJG, Temporary, AUS, with continued service as WOJG, or higher, since that date, would justify such action. It has been noted that Warrant Officers on the same list, who took the identical examination in another Classification (Motors, Supply, etc.), junior in grade and service to the undersigned by many years, were appointed WOJG, RA, a few years ago, and are still being appointed. In all fairness to other eligibles on this list it is believed appointment of such personnel without recourse to further examination or processing is justified. We have both made the Army our career, having been on continuous Active Duty for 16 years and 8 years, respectively, almost six years as a Warrant Officer Junior Grade, or higher, and believe our request is reasonable. 1st Lt. and CWO.

Allowances for Enlisted Men

Editor, ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL:

In line with the new Pay study to be set up, has the War Department considered or are they considering any increases in rental, subsistence, or travel pay for enlisted personnel. It has always seemed especially strange to me that married officers receive two subsistence allowances (which as it should be) whereas married enlisted men receive only one, and that only when their family is with them and they are given permission to mess separately. The same thing, I believe, applied to the rental allowance in pre-war days; to wit, one's family had to be with the enlisted man.

It is a well-known fact to me and many others in the Service that living apart by necessity is much more expensive than living together, yet the enlisted man actually receives less money at these times. In other words, in the case of the subsistence allowance, there is an implication that the families of enlisted men do not eat.

To attract the type of men we want to our post-war Army and Air Force, such discrepancies should be eliminated; I do not advocate equal pay and allowances, but I do think the same approaches to these pay problems are only fair.

It would be appreciated, I am sure, by many deserving enlisted men if this matter were presented to a pay-adjustment Board for proper consideration. Your title of "Spokesman of the Services" and the respect held for you by the legislative bodies and others in Washington fit you well for the task of presenting this problem to the proper Pay Board or other authority." 1st Lt. AC necessary to realize that the United States will not have the resources in manpower masses that may be available to enemy powers. In fact, the limitations of manpower in this country were seriously experienced in World War II, and efforts to obtain a full utilization, though failing to reach the efficiency desired, were nevertheless essential for the successful conduct of the war.

QMC Plans

The security of the United States, therefore, will depend upon the creative genius of our scientists, the superior capabilities of the American servicemen, the matchless skills of our workmen, and the ability of our industry speedily to convert to war economy and to produce the finest equipment in overwhelming quantities.

It is generally conceded that in case of an attack, this country will never again have years, months, or even weeks to prepare its defense. As the deciding factor in two world wars, the United States would undoubtedly be the first target in World War III. If war ever comes again, the question of survival will depend upon the speed and effectiveness of mobilization. Needless to say there can be no speedy mobilization without a complete plan, thoroughly implemented, and maintained in readiness.

Having in mind that the American soldier must be the best fed, best clothed, best equipped, and best served so that he may become the best trained and most efficient, the Quartermaster Corps is directing its program of research and development seeking constantly to find better items.

By making the American soldier's combat rations more nourishing, more appetizing, and more stable than those of his enemies, and by decreasing their weight to diminish his pay load in battle, the Quartermaster contributes to the superiority of the American soldier. If a clothing assembly is devised which will permit a soldier to operate efficiently for long periods in areas of extreme cold, he has a definite advantage over an enemy less adequately clothed. If we are better able to protect our men against the heat of the desert, the humidity of the jungle, or against disease-bearing insects than is the enemy, we have added to the American soldier's advantages.

The Quartermaster Corps is conducting its post-war research and development program on the premise that virtually all of the equipment it supplied in World War II may be considered obsolete and inadequate for a future war. Scientists in scores of universities, technical schools, governmental agencies, industrial plants, and foundations throughout the United States are concentrating on the many problems that relate to man and how best to implement him for a given task in any climate or condition under which he may be called upon to live and fight.

These research activities are now being carried on in different locations: food and packaging at the QM Food and Container Institute for the Armed Forces at Chicago; textiles, clothing, and bacteriology at the Philadelphia Quartermaster Depot; environmental protection at the QM Climatic Research Laboratory in Lawrence, Mass.; mechanical equipment at the Jeffersonville (Ind.) Quartermaster Depot. It is proposed, and Congress has been asked to authorize the erection of a central research laboratory in which all of these activities may be consolidated and thereby better correlated. The Committee on Armed Services of the House of Representatives in the closing days of the past session reported favorably on the proposal.

The Quartermaster Corps is aiding in the Army-wide program for improving the quality of the garrison mess by training and supplying instructors for food service schools, by giving highly specialized courses in the procurement, preparation, service, and conservation of food, and by assigning officers to study food service methods in commercial installations. A survey is now being made of the Army garrison mess to determine how it may be made better.

Industrial and commercial organizations engaged in types of work related to Quartermaster missions are being solicited to establish Reserve Corps units so as to maintain the skills and training of specialists who, with the National Guard, would constitute the M-Day force for national defense.

The program for national security would be ineffective without the fullest collaboration of industry, geared to rapid and efficient conversion in time of an emergency. How well this program may be implemented all along the line is a challenge to the foresight of the Nation, and may prove the key to lasting peace.

Sports Front

Two factors kept Navy from making a real football game out of their 27-0 defeat at the hands of Notre Dame in Cleveland last Saturday. They were fumbling and a leg injury to Dick Scott.

Don't get the idea that Navy disgraced itself, or that the Irish had an easy time of it. Such is not the case. Going into the third quarter it was still anybody's game, despite the two touchdowns the victors racked up in the first half.

However, every time the Blue and Gold's sails were set to the sky, a backfield fumble brought a halt to proceedings. The hot potato act almost reached the ludicrous stage when, with less than two minutes to play, the final fumble occurred on fourth down with the ball on Notre Dame's one-yard line.

It is possible, via blocked punts, intercepted passes and other minor miracles, to score without having possession of the ball. No team ever built a successful offense around this modus operandi, though. Nine times out of ten, the team that controls the ball wins the ball game. Until Navy cures itself of incessant and costly fumbling (the first three Notre Dame touchdowns were set up by Annapolis' sloppy ball handling), the efforts of a potentially fine team will result in nothing more than occasional bursts of brilliance.

Scott's injury seemed to shackle Navy's defense as thoroughly as fumbling did its offense. The line-backer-upper par excellence, who is expected to be available for the rest of the season, showed by the effect of his absence that, if he is not the best center in college ranks, certainly he is the most valuable to his team.

Without him, Navy's defense seems determined but untutored. With him, except for a regrettable tendency to allow pass receivers to wander about untended, it ranks with the best in the game. Ask Notre Dame.

Washington & Lee found out the hard way what it's like to face a good team on the rebound from a heartbreaking defeat. The Generals provided ideal opposition for Army, not only permitting the latter to employ more than four full teams in rolling up 65 points but obligingly throwing 20 forward passes, enabling the Cadets to work on their most glaring weakness.

The score was 65-13. West Point now has a winning streak of one.

Schedule for Saturday, 8 November: Army-Notre Dame at South Bend; Navy-Georgia Tech at Baltimore.

15 November finds what should be two good football games on the academy slates. Navy tangles with a bowl-bound Penn State eleven in Baltimore in a contest which should prove whether the Nittany Lions are just a good small college club or are really ready to play with the big boys. For the midshipmen it is another tough game in a schedule that looked rugged at first glance and which now finds all of Navy's opponents but Cornell ranked in the top twenty teams in the country. Five (Notre Dame, Penn, Penn State, Georgia Tech and Army) are in the first ten.

Army plays Penn the same day at Franklin Field. This game will decide the unofficial championship of the East, in all probability. Interestingly enough, Penn will probably be favored in what may well be the most exciting game of the year.

Academy Opponents' Scores

Georgia Tech 7, Duke 0.
Penn State 48, Colgate 0.
Penn 26, Princeton 7.
